

Enhanced functionality through better inventory management and supply chain forecasting

Surgical facilities are continually faced with the challenge of having to balance inventory availability and high-order fill rates with the financial demands of inventory turnover, minimal inventory shrink and obsolescence. Fortunately, this is a process where large, cost-saving opportunities flourish.

SourceMedical understands the ways in which surgical facilities can benefit and maximize savings through improved healthcare supply chain management. The company now offers SourcePlus PCX Elite, an advanced product solution that enhances SourcePlus PurchaseConnection (PCX).

Advanced supply chain management solution

Designed exclusively for ambulatory surgery centers and surgical hospitals, SourcePlus PCX allows inventory users an Electronic Data Interface (EDI) to submit purchase orders to multiple vendors. This seamless integration from your SourceMedical software to the supply chain solution helps simplify the ordering process, speeds product availability, improves inventory levels and reduces labor and other costs.

Seamless integration with existing systems

SourcePlus PCX Elite is an enhanced materials management solution, available only with the Vision and AdvantX software, that helps to maximize surgical facilities' supply chain procedures. The browser-based application provides a secure and reliable platform for collaborative Just-In-Time (JIT) and Low-Unit-of-Measure (LUM) inventory management and supply chain forecasting.

SourcePlus PCX Elite automates a significant portion of a surgical facility's procurement processes, thereby eliminating many of the errors that can occur when using traditional manual processes. This affordable solution offers low implementation and maintenance impact for your facility, making it an easy choice to integrate into your current system.

With SourcePlus PCX, facilities have a central point of visibility into their supply chain. Through this portal, they can easily submit and confirm orders and receive supply and pricing updates automatically. With the additional features offered in the SourcePlus PCX Elite product, inventory forecasting and management is now one less worry for your facility.
